Freshmen Add 154 To ROTC Total; Reda Is CO

With the addition of one hundred fifty-four freshmen, the ROTC Unit at Loyola now lists three hundred and fourteen cadets and eight Regular Army staff members. It occupies two equipment rooms and offices in the Dell building and has approximately ninety thousand dollars worth of equipment on the campus.

There are two new additions to the teaching staff this year. Lieut. Loren S. Patterson, recently returned from Germany where he has been stationed since his graduation from West Point in 1949, will be Assistant P. M. S. & T. and will teach the sophomore students. The other new member of the staff is M. Sgt. John A. Dunleavy who has just returned from Korea and who has had previous experience with the ROTC at Pennsylvania Military College and the University of Dayton.

Rifle Range Nears Completion

The College is constructing a rifle range behind the Dell building for the benefit of the cadet corps but the building schedule is behind time. It was supposed to be completed by July 15, 1953. In the meantime the rifle team, of which there will be a varsity and junior varsity division this year, will practice at the Johns Hopkins range.

For the first ten weeks of this semester the drill periods will be two hours long, from 1 till 3 P. M. on Wednesdays. At the end of the ten weeks, about Thanksgiving, the unit will hold its first review. The honor review for the President of the College and the Queen of the Military Ball will be held in the Spring as they were last year.

Reda To Command Unit

The cadet officers this year are as follows: Mario Reda, commander of the winning platoon in last year's competition, is the Regimental Commander with the rank of full Colonel. The two battalion commanders, with the rank of Lieut. Colonel, are Kenneth Gue and George Lewis; the four company commanders with the rank of Captain are Kenneth Wright, Andrew Nicotra, Joseph Thompson and John Beck; the regimental executive officer with the rank of Lieut. Colonel is Duane Shultz.

New Chapter To Be Added

The extra-curricular activities in the military line will consist of the newly chartered Pershing Rifles Company and a chapter of the Scabbard and Blade, a national honorary military fraternity, for which Loyola will enter a petition this semester. If the Scabbard and Blade is as successful as the Pershing Rifles unit, it will probably be on the campus by the end of the year.

Lieut. Colonel Ralph E. Vandervort, Jr., chief instructor of the unit, announces that the first drill in uniform will be held next Wednesday, October 7th. Those without the proper uniform requirements will be eligible for demerits.

Council Elects '53-54 Officers

The first official meeting of the Student Council was conducted on Friday, September 25, 1953. With Vern Steedman, Council President presiding, elections were held, and the following officers were chosen: Vice-President, Matthew Arena; Secretary, William Hicken; Treasurer, Richard Hunt; Social-Secretary, Bruce Alderman; Parliamentarian, Joseph Mead, and Lay Faculty Moderator, Col. Ralph Vandervort.

Frosh-Soph Party Official

Thomas Burch, Sophomore Class President, made the first motion of the year that a party following the rugby game between freshmen and sophomores should be held in Cohn Auditorium or the cafeteria exclusively for those two classes. The motion was passed unanimously.

Dick Hunt, Junior Class President, proposed that the student council should form a boosters' club, as found in many other high schools and colleges, to support athletic events. Arena suggested that the motion be postponed for further consideration and that a committee be appointed to investigate the advantages of such a club with Hunt as senior member. The amendment was passed.

Council Members Absent

A number of members were absent from this initial meeting. It is the duty of the president of each school organization to note the announcement of a Council gathering and to represent his particular organization at that meeting; otherwise the Council cannot possibly represent the interests of the entire school.

The members of the Council would like to thank all those responsible for making the Freshman orientation program a success.

Fresh Dance Inaugurates Social Year

Loyola's social season will be opened this year by the traditional Freshman Welcoming Dance, sponsored by the Sophomore class, to be held in the Evergreen Gymnasium tomorrow night from nine until one. Music will be provided by the Debonaires and dress will be informal. Tickets are $2.40 per couple.

Several Door Prizes

According to Tom Burch, President of the Sophomore class, several door prizes, which Baltimore merchants have donated, will be distributed to ticket holders. These are the same door prizes that have been on display in the cafeteria this past week.

Jack Moylan, ticket chairman, has announced that the officers of the Sophomore, Junior, and Senior classes have been given tickets to sell. A ticket booth will be set up in the cafeteria to accommodate the student body. Although the dance is intended primarily as a tribute to the Freshmen, all upperclassmen are invited to attend.

The Gym will be decorated by a committee under the direction of Sam Ady. Dick Barranger is in charge of refreshments and Jack Doetzer heads the table reservation committee. Each table will accommodate five couples. A fee of twenty-five cents will be charged for each table.

Liquor Regulation Enforced

The Loyola College blue law stating that no alcoholic beverages may be brought to any dance held on the campus is still in effect. Persons found violating this rule will be shot at dawn, etc. The Student Council is cooperating with the faculty in enforcing this regulation.

Father Hoggson New Dean; Seven Jesuits Join Staff

With the coming of another school year, we find many new faces appearing on the Loyola Campus. Operation "big switch" has not only occurred within the student body, but has extended to the faculty as well.

The most prominent change to be noted is the acquisition of our present Dean of Studies, the Rev. Robert L. Hoggson, S.J. Father Hoggson has replaced the Rev. Joseph K. Drane, S.J., who has resumed a teaching role at the Jesuit Novitiate, Wernersville, Pa. After graduating from Loyola High School, Blakefield, Father Hoggson entered the Society of Jesus in 1931 and spent his initial four years at St. Andrew in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in novitiate and classical studies. Thereafter Father was transferred to St. Louis University where he pursued courses in Philosophy and Sociology, receiving Bachelor of Arts and Master of Arts degrees in the latter subject.

Following his teaching experience at Georgetown Prep from 1939-41, Father Hoggson completed the required course in theology and was ordained at Woodstock College in 1944. After a year of tertianship at the Shrine of the North American Martyrs in Auriesville, N. Y., he engaged in graduate work and received a doctorate from Fordham University.

Dean Hoggson began his initial teaching role at Loyola College in the Evening School during the 1950 Summer Sessions. Last year, he taught Sociology and Ethics in the Evening School and the former subject during the day. This brings Father Hoggson's history up to his newly-acquired role as Dean of the college in which position everyone wishes him the best-of-luck.

Seven New Jesuits

Other faculty changes include seven Jesuits. The Rev. Anthony J. Zeits, S.J., has moved his quarters from St. Ignatius Church, Calvert and Madison Sts., to the college where he has assumed the administrative duties of Treasurer. The Rev. Francis X. Knott, S.J., has been transferred from Blakefield, but will continue his role as Student Counsellor. Having just completed his tertianship at Auriesville, N. Y., the Rev. C. Frederick Koehler, S.J., has been assigned to the college math department. Scranton University supplied two new figures to the faculty scene in the person of the Rev. J. Eugene Gallery, S.J., former President of Scranton, now teaching sociology and the Rev. James L. Harley, who is associated with the biology department. The Rev. John J. O'Rourke, S.J., is assistant to the President. The list of priests is completed by the Rev. William Gibbons, S.J., who, having completed his graduate work at N. Y. U., is now a professor of ethics and economics and the school librarian.

Dr. Thornton, Lecturer In Chemistry, Dies At 69; Noted For Contributions To Science

After a brief illness, Dr. William M. Thornton, Jr., died early Tuesday, September 22, at his home at the age of 69. Dr. Thornton was lecturer in Chemistry at Loyola. His students consisted of Chemistry majors studying Spot Analysis and Physical Measurements.

Born in Charlottesville, Virginia, Dr. Thornton was the son of William Mynn Thornton, professor of Applied Mathematics in the University of Virginia for more than half a century.

Graduating from Hampden-Sydney College in 1904 with a degree of Bachelor of Arts, he entered the Graduate School of the University of Virginia where he studied Chemistry, Physics, and Geology from 1904 to 1907. In 1907, he received the degree of Master of Arts.

Entering Yale University in 1911, Dr. Thornton received the degrees of Master of Arts in 1912 and doctor of Philosophy in 1914. During his last two years at Yale, he held the Robinson Fellowship in the Graduate School of that university.

From 1914 to 1918, Dr. Thornton held various positions including instructor of General Chemistry in the College of the City of New

Dr. William M. Thornton, Jr.

York, chemist in the laboratories of E. I. duPont de Nemours and Co., Inc., and Junior Gas Chemist in the Government service at the Johns Hopkins University. In 1919, he was appointed Associate in Chemistry at the same University and continued in this capacity until 1937.

Dr. Thornton came to Loyola College in 1939 as a research fellow, pursuing studies in Analytic Chemistry and Metrology. In 1942, he was Associate Explosive Chemist with the Explosives Division of the United States Bureau of Mines. However, poor health forced him to resign. In 1947, he was appointed Research Associate in the Department of Pharmacology at the University of Maryland.

Some societies of which he was a member were the American Chemical Society, the French Society of Mineralogy, Sigma Xi, Alpha Chi Sigma, and Phi Beta Kappa.

Widely known for his many scientific articles, Dr. Thornton was selected by the American Chemical Society to write the Monograph on Titanium.

In 1951, Dr. Thornton presented to the Chemistry Department of Loyola College the Haüy Mineral Cabinet. At the time of his death he was preparing a volume on Physical Measurements.

Although most Loyola students never studied under Dr. Thornton, anyone who ever stepped inside of the Science Building recognized the tall, lean figure of the man who brought fame to his adopted alma mater through his papers and articles.

Meet The Faculty

Father Harley-Geneticist With Military Background

by Charles E. Mehling

Among the list of new faculty members for the present academic year is the name of Rev. James Louis Harley, S.J. Father Harley is a member of the Biology Department and is replacing Father Eugene Tucker who was recently appointed as Father Minister at St. Isaac Jogues Novitiate, Wernersville, Pa.

Graduate Of Boston College

Father Harley was born in Philadelphia, Pa., and received his high school education at St. Joseph's Preparatory in that city. From St. Joseph's, Father Harley went to the Jesuit Novitiate at Yonkers, N. Y. This was followed by studies in philosophy and science at Weston College, Weston, Mass. He received a master of arts degree from Boston College, affiliated with Weston, and later acquired a master of science in Cytology from Fordham University. He also spent four years at Woodstock College, Woodstock, Md., where he took his theological studies and was ordained there in 1933.

He began his teaching at St. Joseph's High in Philadelphia. In 1935, he was transferred from there to Gonzaga High in Washington, D. C., and in 1942, he was among the first group of Jesuits assigned to teach at the University of Scranton.

Served As Chaplain

As the World War progressed, Father Harley received a military leave of absence and served as a chaplain with the army in India and Burma from 1944 to 1946. He then returned to teaching at the University of Scranton for four years. At the outbreak of the Korean Campaign, he again received a military leave of absence and taught at the Chaplain's School at Ft. Slocum, N. Y., from 1950 to 1952. He was discharged from the army with the present rank of Major, and returned to the University of Scranton. From there, he was transferred to Loyola.

Teaches Genetics

Father Harley has always taught the biological sciences. Here at Loyola, he is teaching Embryology, Histology and Genetics. Besides his regular college classes, he is also teaching a course on Saturday in the graduate division entitled, "Problems of Alcoholism." This course, which he has taught at the Army Chaplain's School, is intended mainly for teachers and those engaged in social work.

Among his early views of the College, Father Harley finds the student body to be very cordial and friendly. This he accredits to the long-fabled and much talked about, "Southern Hospitality."

Rev. James L. Harley, S.J.

Russo Elected Biology Prexy

The Mendel Club, the oldest science organization on campus, held its first meeting of the season Monday, September 14. The Rev. Joseph S. Didusch, S.J., Chairman of the Biology Department and moderator of the club, presided over this initial gathering. Elections were conducted in which Gerard L. Russo secured the office of President and John R. Schroeder that of Vice-President. John M. Foley was chosen Secretary, Lewis P. Glodek, Treasurer and John T. Jordon, Sergeant-at-Arms.

Seminar Topics Listed

Lecture topics were assigned to the majority of new members. It will be the duty of these particular students to present a scientific paper before the society during the coming school year.

The following is the schedule of the 1953-54 Mendel Club Seminar: Oct. 22, "Adrenal Function" by James P. Durkan, Nov. 5, "Water Pollution" by David L. Abramson, Nov. 19 "Injurious Insects" by Francis V. Semansky, Dec. 3, "Genetics and Human Races" by John M. Foley, Jan. 7, "The Human Senses" by Ferdinand G. Mainolfi, Jan. 28, "Water Fluoridation" by Duane P. Schultz, Feb. 18, "Sewage Microbiology" by John T. Jordan, March 4, "Beneficial Insects" by Andrew P. Nicotra, April 8, "Pituitary Function" by Gerard L. Russo and May 6, "Multiple Births" by John R. Schroeder.

Notices of the Seminar meetings will be posted on the biology department's bulletin board, first floor of the science building. Lectures will be held on Thursday at 1:00 P. M. in Room S 306. Faculty and students are invited to attend.

Arena Attends NSA Congress As Loyola Rep.

by Matthew P. Arena

From August 24 until September 2, I attended the United States National Student Association's Sixth National Student Congress. The theme of this convention of student leaders from American colleges, along with representatives of national unions of students from 28 foreign countries, was "To Strengthen the forces of Freedom".

The host to the Congress was the Ohio State University, Columbus, Ohio, whose magnificent Ohio Union Building, financed by student contributions and costing four and a half million dollars, afforded many air-conditioned hours of debate and speeches.

600 Delegates Present

For ten days the 600 delegates were almost completely absorbed with the problems, welfare and significance of the student in the free world. I chose to attend the Student Affairs Commission where I was able to exchange ideas with leaders from student bodies similar to ours in regard to orientation, "school spirit," student rights and responsibilities, academic freedom, inter-collegiate athletics, Student Discount System, blood donation programs, theory and philosophy of student government, student-faculty relationship, collegiate press, National Leadership Training Program, and the vast field of international cooperation among students.

The Congress received greetings from such personages as President Eisenhower, Adlai Stevenson, Harry Truman, Governor Mennen Williams and Premier Naguib of Egypt, to mention a few. Among the speakers were Keynote William E. Birenbaum, Director of Student Activities, University of Chicago; John Simon, Foundation for Youth and Student Affairs; Erwin D. Canham, Editor, Christian Science Monitor; and Colonel Ben C. Limb, South Korean Ambassador to the United Nations.

The usually dormant mind of the collegian during the summer interim came to life at this convention. The democratic spirit of freedom of thought and expression was exercised to its fullest.

Criticism Offered

Mr. Birenbaum's address consisted of a constructive criticism of N. S. A. and among his criticisms was one which stands uppermost in my recollection. He said that this convention was a meeting place of ideas and that these ideas might be taken back to our campus to be integrated into our student governments. But he was wary of those delegates who came to the Congress in "concrete dump trucks" hoping to take back to their campuses a multitude of concrete programs. I hope that I was one of those who brought back a few "good" ideas.

Today's Rugby Game Ends Freshman Orientation

This is the time of year that brings smiles to the lips of Loyola's confident upperclassmen. The freshmen, with their pup caps and name tags and wide-eyed look of amazement, have invaded the campus. This year's crop numbers one hundred and seventy-three and includes seven Korean veterans. Eventually, the newcomers will weld into campus affairs, but for three weeks, at least, these new Loyolans will continue to be baffled by the maze of officialdom.

However, the Student Council has made a sincere effort to hasten the process of integration by lessening freshman anxiety. To make them feel more at home and more welcome, the Council planned an elaborate orientation ceremony lasting two days and featuring talks of welcome. The two day session was held in Cohn Hall on September 10th and 11th.

Campus Leaders Speak

Student Council President Vern Steedman and Sophomore Class President Tom Burch led the orientation sessions and introduced the freshmen to the Very Rev. Thomas J. Murray, S. J., President; the Rev. Robert L. Hoggson, S. J., Dean of Studies; the Rev. Robert P. Arthur, S. J., Dean of Men; Athletic Director Emil "Lefty" Reitz; and Lt. Col. Ralph E. Vandervort, Jr., ROTC director. Presidents of the various campus organizations then spoke briefly to the class inviting them to join their clubs.

On Friday, September 11, each new student was interviewed by members of the senior class or by club officers who informed them about the purpose of the college extra-curricular activities and advised them to join those in which they were interested. Following the interviews, the freshmen were all invited to a reception with the faculty as the guests of Father Murray. There, the boys were given the opportunity to meet the President and members of the Jesuit community, along with other faculty members who teach first year classes.

Sophomores Entertain

Shortly thereafter the Sophomore class began making the traditional gestures. First, the pup caps and name cards were sold to the frosh to give them an individualistic look. Next, they were informed that the hats were to be worn at least until the traditional Rugby Game with the Sophs. This free-for-all, a game with no rules, no umpire, and a great amount of score, has been won by the Freshmen class in recent years simply because that class has been able to amass more men and to outnumber the Sophs. This year, says Sophomore class vice-president Dick Lochner, things will be different. The game will be held on October 2nd.

Dance For Freshmen

The last feature of the school's program for freshmen will be the Welcoming Dance on Saturday, October 3rd.

Thus far, it would seem that the preparations made in advance of the freshmen arrival were justified. Some organizations have already reported an unusually large number of freshmen candidates and there has been a decrease in the number of newcomers walking in one building looking for a room in another. However, as reported above, that wide-eyed look, with its accompanying bewildered grin still remains and is likely to stay that way—at least for a while!

Diverse Fields of Interest Offered by Campus Activities

Extra-curricular activities play an important part in the well-rounded college education. There is such a wide range of activities offered here at Loyola, no student has an excuse for being an absolute extra-curricular dullard. The following are a few of the clubs and societies open to all students.

The Junior and Senior Sodalities are the campus religious organizations. The prime purpose of each member is the sanctification of one's self and one's neighbor. Prefects are Donald Burton and Alfred Filar. The Rev. Francis Knott, S. J., and the Rev. Thomas Higgins, S. J., are moderators.

The Robert Bellarmine Debating Society is designed to give those interested in public speaking a chance to use and improve their talents. Richard Otenasek is president.

The Mask and Rapier Dramatic Society will hold their annual "Loyola Night" this fall. This event has been a Loyola tradition for many years. The Rev. John J. Scanlan, S. J., is moderator and Mr. John Toland is director. Raymond Gaeng is president.

CLOTHES FOR THE COLLEGE MAN

New English Professors Grace Evergreen Campus

The English Department of Loyola College finds four new laymen in its ranks as the first semester prods the bleary-eyed student from the mental inactivity of a scorching summer. They are Mr. Francis O. Voci, Mr. John R. Toland, Mr. Brendan P. O Hehir and Mr. Francis L. Christ.

Mr. Voci Instructs Freshmen

Mr. Voci is already instilling the basic principles of Ciceronean rhetoric in the musty minds of the freshmen; this course will be followed by one in English composition and poetry. Mr. Voci originally called Brockton, Massachusetts, his home, where he attended St. Anselm's College as an English major. He received his Masters degree in English from the University of Notre Dame in 1951. Immediately preceding his coming to Loyola College, Mr. Voci worked for the government in Washington. He aspires to eventually receive a doctorate in Italian.

New Dramatics Director

Mr. Toland will undertake the task of instructing three sophomore sections in the lucrative art of Persuasive Speech and will conduct a drama course for the pleasure of juniors and seniors. A gentleman sporting a true cosmopolitan air, Mr. Toland has graced the halls of at least four colleges and universities. Originally from Atlantic City, N. J., he received his A. B. from La Salle College in Philadelphia as an English major. After brief sojourns to the University of Laval in Quebec and Wilson Teachers College in Washington, D. C., he settled at Catholic University for a Masters degree in Speech and Drama, which degree he will soon receive. Mr. Toland is the new Producer-Director of the Mask & Rapier Society.

Assigned English Majors

To Mr. O Hehir, Loyola College has assigned the junior and senior

English majors, and he will impart to them the life and times of Pope and the rest of the 18th century literary writers. Mr. O Hehir comes from New York, where he graduated from Fordham. He now has his Master of Arts degree and is working for a doctorate. As a sideline, Mr. O Hehir gives a course at Hopkins entitled "The Aesthetics of Literature."

West Point To Loyola

The teaching of sophomore English will undoubtedly seem slightly humdrum to an active gentleman like Mr. Christ for he was once a construction foreman. A native of Pittsburgh, Mr. Christ spent ten years in the service during which time he received his A. B. in literature from Fordham University. Since then, he has followed studies at Fordham in Communication Arts. Last year, he taught at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, before coming to Loyola College.

Music Club Installs Hi-Fi Equipment

The Music Club, founded by Mr. Herzer last year, will hold its first meeting Wednesday, October 7th in Xavier Lounge at 3 o'clock. The club now owns its own Hi-Fi equipment consisting of a base reflex cabinet and speaker, pre-amplifier, amplifier, and turntable. Everyone interested in music or the study of high fidelity sound is invited. Bring in your LP records and hear them as you have never heard them before.

Debaters Vie Oct. 29 With Mt. St. Agnes

This year, for the first time, the Loyola Bellarmine Debating Society will participate in the newly formed Catholic Inter-Collegiate Debating League of the Baltimore-Washington Area.

The first Loyola debate in league competition will be held on October 29 at Mount Saint Agnes. Throughout the year, the Society will meet all other league teams twice in an effort to win the first championship trophy to be awarded.

Loyola Organized League

The Inter-Collegiate league was formed last year when Loyola's Hal Sanks contacted representatives of all the Catholic colleges in this area and presented them with the plan. Loyola, Georgetown, Trinity College, Mount Saint Agnes, Notre Dame of Maryland, Mount Saint Mary's and Saint Joseph's College responded by attending the first meeting held in January.

At that meeting, a committee of Loyola students was given the task of drawing up a Constitution, rules of debate and a League Ballot. A final meeting in May accepted the Constitution and elected the following officers: Hal Sanks, Loyola, President; Leo Donovann, Georgetown, Vice-President; and Kay Debelius, Notre Dame, Secretary.

Debates Scheduled

During the Summer, the officers scheduled all debates and made the necessary organizational decisions. The first league meeting for the current school year will be held on October 11 at Notre Dame.

To insure active Loyola representation in League affairs, president Dick Otenasek of the Bellarmine Society will appoint four delegates and alternates to attend League meetings.

Debate Topic Announced

The topic to be debated throughout the 1953-54 league season was decided by a national board on Aug. 15, but the announcement of the resolution was just recently sent to the individual schools. The subject is stated as follows: Resolved: That the United States should adopt a policy of free trade. Already, Loyola debaters have begun to gather information for the coming season.

Seniors Map Revolutionary Multi-Color 1954 Yearbook

The Evergreen staff is now finishing the plans for the all-new, bigger 1954 Evergreen, and production of the book has already begun under the direction of editor-in-chief Joseph A. Mead. Forget all the past Loyola yearbooks that you have ever seen. This year's book is new and different. The plans have been in preparation since June.

Multicolor To Be Used

The book will be 160 pages of which about 125 pages will be feature pages and 35 pages will be advertisement. The cover will be padded leather. A new feature in this year's book will be the proposed addition of extra color, green and gray. The added colors will appear mainly in the introductory and divider sections but will also be effectively displayed throughout the rest of the book.

Larger Pictures And Captions

The plans call for much larger pictures than in previous years; this will enable everyone in the pictures to be easily recognized. Adequate captions will accompany each picture, identifying everyone where possible.

A large section has been designed for the underclasses and the ROTC. The classes will appear according to courses, as arts, business and science. A large space will be devoted to a written summary of each class activity during the year.

The senior section will contain the pictures of three seniors on each page with a write-up and list of activities of about 50 words for each senior. Jim Ford, editor of the senior section, is currently preparing these write-ups and the schedule for the seniors' pictures which will be taken on the campus Oct. 15 and 16.

Activities, Intramurals Featured

The activities section is under the direction of Bill Hicken. One or two full pages are designed for each activity on the campus. The activities section contains over 30 pages, each one with a special design that promises to make this division one of the highlights of the edition.

The sports section is divided into segments for fall, winter and spring sports. There will be a large portion, in addition, devoted to intramural sports. This work is under the direction of Bo Menton, Signs of the Times: Autumn Harmony . . .

The time: an early morning in 1939. The scene: a large veranda in Kentucky, an elderly Southern gentleman reclines in his favorite chair reading the morning paper while his manservant patters about him cleaning up freshly strewn julip cups and the like.

"Well, Sam," said the old gent, glancing up from his paper, "another war's started."

"You don't say, colonel?" replied the servitor. "Who's in it?"

"England and Germany."

"They gone to quarrelin' agin, eh, colonel?"

"Yep. That's what it says in the paper here."

Sam was silent for a moment.

"Well," he mused, "they got a real nice day for it."

Well, this year's crop of freshmen has a lovely afternoon on which to do battle with their traditional sophomore rivals in the annual rugby game, sponsored by the latter as a fitting close to the freshman orientation period. All of which leads to two diverse but nevertheless interesting observations. The first concerns the manner in which the freshmen were handled this year during their all-important first days at Evergreen. Writing as one who has witnessed three previous such orientations, it was deeply gratifying to note the comparatively smooth and efficient way in which the various stages of this year's program were conducted. Every effort was made on the part of the faculty and student officers to familiarize the new students with the organizational setup here at Loyola, with the opportunities offered by the many clubs and activities, and finally with the campus itself. Only time will show if their efforts will bring fruit.

The interesting and most important sidelight to all this is the fact that for the first time in many a moon, members of the student council worked together amiably as an efficient organization to accomplish a common good. As early as last May it was realized that the council's most significant task in the early part of the school year would be the care and guidance of the incoming freshmen. Throughout the summer, meetings were held and plans were laid for the first week of orientation, with the result that each council member knew the role he was to play in interviewing the freshmen under his charge, and in planting the seeds of interest among them with regard to joining the various campus clubs and societies. Thus, workmanlike cooperation among its members replaced the stolid individualism exhibited by many of the graduated council members of previous years, years in which the student council represented the student's well-being only in as much as it was listed in the college catalog as having done such. From this corner, it begins to look as if the darkhorse winner of last year's council elections, Vern Steedman, with the support of a keenly-spirited senior class, may at last give the students of Loyola the representation in school affairs which other colleges have enjoyed for some time.

—MMR

. . . And A Law With No Exceptions

It's about time somebody told the Freshmen what the score is. Despite what was said to them during orientation, most Freshmen have been staying away from the clubs and activities in droves. Three weeks have gone by since the beginning of school. Most of the clubs have had at least one meeting and some have had two or three. Certainly enough time has elapsed for each Freshman to have joined one activity. Nevertheless, a spot check shows that only fifty Freshmen have signed up for participation in an activity while the entire class numbers more than three times that many. Therefore, less than one out of every three Freshmen has taken the time and energy to make college life more enjoyable for himself.

One way of learning is through constant repetition. Therefore, without fear of repeating what you have already heard a hundred times, let us remind you once again that your future employer will spend as much time looking at the extracurricular activities on your record as he will at your marks. Professional schools prefer a student whose grades are 85 and who has participated in a number of school activities to one whose grades are 95 but who found no time for extracurricular activities.

The old argument that none of the activities offered appeals to you just does not hold water. If the student is not interested in one of the nineteen activities or nine sports offered, he does not belong in college. Such a person could be neither animal, vegetable, nor mineral.

There is a law which does not appear in any of our college texts but is derived from the science of human nature.

The benefit and enjoyment which a student derives from his years in college are directly proportional to the number of activities of which he is an active member and inversely proportional to the square of the time he spends in the cafeteria.

This law has no exceptions.

Mr. Pierce J. Flanigan, Jr.

Benefaction Acknowledged

The repaving of the campus roads, the construction of the new west entrance to the parking spaces, and the new paving in the military area were completed this summer, with a considerable saving to the College, by the firm of P. Flanigan and Sons, Inc., engaged in highway construction. This benefaction, the latest expression of the generosity of the Flanigan family to the Jesuits in Baltimore, was arranged through Mr. Pierce J. Flanigan, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer of the firm.

After graduating from Calvert Hall, Mr. Flanigan acquired the degree of B.S. in Civil Engineering at Lehigh University, and four years later he graduated from the Georgetown University Law School. Recently he was elected a member of the Board of the Union Trust Co. of Maryland.

Mr. Flanigan was appointed a member of the Lay Advisory Council of Loyola College by Rev. Francis X. Talbot, S.J. during his regime as president of the College.

He distributes his spare time among his hobbies of boating, fishing and hunting and various civic activities. Among the latter may be included the Chairmanship of the Construction Division of the 1953 American Red Cross Campaign and the Catholic Charities Appeal.

And So We Bid The Dunes Adieu For Another Year

by James R. Ford

The effect which the month of September produces upon individuals is varied and complex. Those engaged in the snowball industry despise its arrival, for cooler weather means a sharp decline in sales. On the other hand, the artist heralds Autumn with its array of colors and twitches impatiently until the leaves begin to turn. But the Fall of the year affects that most unique of all creatures, the college student, with mixed emotions.

First, we have a group which may be called the "Sandmen". These are easily identified by the unusual striped sun tan they have acquired from snoozing under boardwalks, lumber piles, empty beer cases, and tattered convertible tops. These lads are to be pitied, because, for the most part, they have lived on a liquid diet all summer. Now they return to school, eyes shining (?) and ready for the next round.

4-F's Prominent

The next set of individuals are those just pardoned by the Selective Service System. Their most striking characteristics are trembling hands, bloodshot eyes, and intermittent attacks of acute indigestion. Once in class their sleepless nights are over for now they have found refuge from that stern hunter with the white beard and striped trousers. The motto of these poor creatures is "we'll burn up the road this year". So, with unsteady gait, they muster outside of their classes peering expectantly around corners in anticipation that a man in khaki will grab them before the bell rings.

Jeans And Saddles

Finally, we come to the true college man. Here is an individual who would stand out in any crowd. His freshly pressed blue jeans, combined with black and gray saddle shoes, and white wool socks mark him as a man of distinction. For equipment he carries a scratch pad with a Petty Girl cover, a pencil with no point, and a radio-active dime. And so, prepared for anything, he swaggers into class ten minutes late, sneers at the professor, slumps in his favorite chair (last seat, last row) and drops off into oblivion.

Return To Reality

And with the turning of the leaves these various groups turn their gaze to things academic. We must forget those nightly canoe rides with Bertha on Back River, the delights of the beach party and content ourselves with singing hallelujahs to the coming weekend.

"The Hasty Heart", a three act comedy by John Patrick has been selected by the Masque and Rapier Society for its first production of the season and the thespians seem to be going at it in a real big way. According to J. R. Toland, the society's new director, the show will be produced as a theatre-in-the-round production with the audience on all four sides of the players. A novel suggestion was made by someone that seats be placed on the stage and be sold as general admission, since the action of the play will take place in the middle of Cohn Hall. (At this point I was going to say "Dig that crazy balcony"—but decided not to.)

OYO A O EGE—Remember when the pranksters down the street swiped a few letters from the sign on the southwest corner of the campus last year? Well, if they plan on "Knocking the 'C' out of Loyola College" this year they'll find it a little more difficult since we now have a painted sign. When it comes to basketball, though, it seems that they're the ones who take the shellacking.

I understand we have the makings of another Dave Garrity way on the campus, in the person of Paul Shields who is an announcer for Television Station W-A-A-M on weekends. (Prospective "Paul Shields' fan clubs" take note.) * * * "Spike" Warner, who has a B.A. degree in Sociology (?) and is now taking graduate studies at Loyola, didn't much like the idea of wearing a pup cap, when he was approached in the cafe the other day. (Even less the idea of paying for it.)

Pigskin Predictions

by Jim Greenwell

While waiting for the New York Yankees to take their fifth straight World Series, I note the multitude of pigskin prognostications being circulated among the fabulous fall sport's addicts. Just about every so-called "sport's expert," from Grantland Rice down to Joe Zilch of the Backwoods Banner, has tried his hand at selecting the top contenders for the mythical National Football Championship. Crystal gazing of this variety has been going on for quite a few years. It has the effect of stimulating interest and early season ticket sales. Football, as played by the larger colleges is "big business."

Drastic Changes

Several drastic rule revisions will be in vogue. No longer will you see the recently familiar mob scene of twenty-two performers galloping on the field as twenty-two others hobbled off each time the ball changed hands. Yes, the two-platoon system has been abolished and none too early. It was robbing the game of its excitement, suspense and continuity. Spirit and stamina were sacrificed; special skill and single talents were keynoted. The major reason for rescuing football from the revolving door was economy. Smaller squads lower training table costs.

Few Iron Men

Sixty-minute men will be as rare as ham in hamburgers. Nevertheless, such stalwart performers as Johnny Lattner and Don Shannon of Notre Dame, Tom Nickloff of U. S. C., Steve Eisenhower of Navy and Bernie Faloney of Maryland will be very near the "iron man" rating.

Players Quit

The two-platoon system has ended, but not without incident. For instance, six Mississippi players quit the squad because they felt they could not perform under one-platoon rules. At Notre Dame in the annual oldtimer-varsity warm-up, the varsity, playing one-platoon ball, beat the alumni (among them Bobby Williams and Johnny Lujack) 34-7. This fact is indicative of something.

Pigskin Pickings

Having consulted with the eminent and illustrious scribes responsible for printed matter on these pages, the writer herewith submits his Top Ten Teams of 1953:

1. Notre Dame
2. Georgia Tech
3. Michigan State
4. U. C. L. A.
5. Maryland
6. Oklahoma
7. Southern California
8. Baylor
9. Alabama
10. Pittsburgh

Top Games

In tomorrow's top games the writer looks for Notre Dame to roll over Purdue. Frank Leahy's boys should win by three touchdowns. The Engineers of Georgia Tech will not steamroller Southern Methodist, but should win in an interesting game. Michigan State over Minnesota. The Spartans by 20 points. Oregon will find the going rough as they clash with U. C. L. A. Paul Cameron, the Uclan's quadruple threat, (he runs, passes, punts and calls signals) will lead his mates to victory in all-American fashion. Jim Tatum's Terrapins to outclass Clemson by at least 25 points. Watch Chet Hanulak ramble. If Oklahoma is up to par after last week's test with Notre Dame they should squeeze past an up and coming Pittsburgh aggregation. South-

Mat Coach Versatile

by Vince Smith

Last year's orphan, the wrestling team, has finally obtained a coach. Mr. Frank L. Christ, a new faculty member in the English department has been assigned the task. Although a man of small stature, Mr. Christ is, as his record will attest, one of great athletic ability. But size is not grandeur, in this case, as the new coach has a working knowledge of more sports than any man who walks this campus.

Attended Fordham

He attended St. Vincent's College situated in western Pennsylvania near the town of Latrobe. There he studied under the monks of Benedict. He later attended Fordham University, having majored in Communication Arts.

During his stay in the Army Mr. Christ spent a considerable amount of time at the United States Military Academy at West Point. As a Master Sergeant in the Physical Education Department he headed the Judo course for five years. He was also police instructor in weapons besides teaching aquatics, wrestling, basketball, soccer, crew and water polo.

Greyhound Moderator

As if his duties of teaching and coaching were not enough to keep him off the street corners, Mr. Christ has taken on the job of assistant moderator of the Greyhound.

"He profits most who serves best" an old saying goes and Mr. Christ has certainly jumped head first into the pool of school activities in an effort to serve us. We can't help but benefit from his interests.

Married Baltimorean

Mr. Christ is married and the father of two future matmen—Jimmy and Steve. His wife, Alice, is a Baltimorean and a graduate of Forest Park High School.

Inexperience Main Problem For Harriers

With only two lettermen returning Coach Bill McElroy's Cross-Country Squad doesn't pose as a threat for any title this season. In fact McElroy would be happy to win a single meet.

Only Ed Colbourn and Frank Pugh are veteran runners. Joe DeSantis injured a year ago is hopeful of making a comeback, but these three won't be enough unless Mac can find some consistent men from his new candidates which include Jerry Chadwick, Bob Cucuel, Tony Pistorio and freshman Andy Mayo.

No Underclassmen

Not only are prospects dim for this year, but Mac points to the roster of the team which consists of six upperclassmen and only one freshman. What is to become of the sport in the next few years?

ern California will experience little difficulty in getting past an inexperienced Indiana eleven. Baylor to triumph over Miami. Vanderbilt will meet defeat at the hands of Red Drew's Alabama squad.

Money-back Guarantee

If too many of the above selections go awry, the writer promises in the future to leave all such speculative shenanigans to Grantland Rice, Red Smith, Paul Williamson and Company.

Ed Colbourn

Capt. Colbourn Leads Harriers

by Vic Norris

"I wasn't big enough to play any other sports, so I decided to concentrate on running." This wise decision, made by Ed Colbourn in his sophomore year at Mt. St. Joe High School, has led to many crowning achievements for him.

Championship Team

In his remaining three years of high school he was a major letter winner in both track and cross-country. He climaxed his high school career by placing second in the Johns Hopkins University Spiked Shoe Meet and first in the University of Maryland Invitation Track Meet. Ed was also a member of the 1950 M.S.A. championship team.

Captains Team

Since entering Loyola in 1950, the 5'10" senior has won two cross-country medals and one track award. This year, as captain of the cross-country squad and co-captain of the track team, he hopes to continue this pace.

Ed has also added to his accomplishments approximately 20 medals which he has won while running for the Baltimore Olympic Club. Then too, he finished a close second at the Philadelphia Inquirer Invitation Meet. This he remembers as his biggest thrill.

Daily Training

Such a record as the Business Administration Major has established is the result of daily training ten months of the year. He says that track and cross-country "demand the utmost physical conditioning to the limit of an individual's capacity."

Upon graduation in June, Ed, who coach Bill McElroy considers to be one of the finest "Half-milers" he has ever seen, is to be commissioned an Ensign in the U.S.N.R. After completing his tour of duty, he plans to continue running for the Baltimore Olympic Club.

GYM JOTTINGS

by Edward Burnham

This year it falls my lot to inherit from Pete, alias "Bloto," Bamberger this column which in the past has caused much debate between the writer and the higher powers. Much of which I might add was uncalled for.

As most of you may know Pete is now in the Jesuits out at Woodstock.

Big blowout next Thursday down at the Sheraton-Belvedere for a great guy who has 16 years to his credit here at Evergreen and can boast of an ulcer for each one.

Congratulations to Ned Callahan, Dan Whiteford and Alan Meehan on their recent election to office in the Block "L". Much is expected from the Block "L" after the fine showing last year when they carried out a job some said was impossible.

This summer Harry Lentz took a trip down in the land of the Rebels and came back a married man. The bride is the former Betty Anne Broderick of Savannah, Georgia. Mrs. Lentz graduated from Mt. St. Agnes College in 1951.

Origin, Life Of M-D Circuit

by Jim Cole

On April 7, 1940, colleges from Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia and Virginia convened and formed a new league in order to broaden the scope of their athletic competition. They called the new league the "Mason-Dixon Conference." This group is a hybrid, born of the old Mason-Dixon Track Conference and of the Maryland Collegiate Basketball League. It's first meeting was held in Baltimore with nine charter members. These are: American University, Catholic University, Delaware University, Johns Hopkins University, Loyola College, Mt. St. Mary's College, State Teachers College, Washington College and Western Maryland College.

Conference Expands

Soon afterwards, other colleges in this vicinity wishing to further their athletic endeavors, asked admittance into the conference. These were admitted during the winter of 1940-1941. They included Randolph-Macon, Bridgewater and Gallaudet. The first post-war school was Hampden-Sydney in 1947. One year later, Baltimore University, Lynchburg and Roanoke joined. In 1948, Delaware U., one of the larger members of the conference, withdrew.

Sports

The first basketball season, after the formation of the conference, found all nine of the charter members playing, and the top four participating in a tournament held at the end of the regular season in the Johns Hopkins gym. Baseball was the only other sport to be played that first year. In the second year, cross-country, soccer, wrestling, tennis, golf, football and swimming were added. During the war, all sports except basketball and track were dropped due to the manpower shortage. Not until 1947 did the league recover and in the big post-war sports boom that followed, the Mason-Dixon kept abreast of the rest of the sporting world by playing eleven sports.

A speedy recovery is hoped for the mothers of Lefty Reitz and Ned Callahan.

New Intramurals Directors for this year will be Harry Lentz and Bo Menton. They have a very interesting program set up and all they need now is a little cooperation from the student body.

Mr. Bean was elated the other day when he found a freshman to fill those size 15 basketball shoes he has been kicking around the equipment room the last few years.

Joel Hittleman is looking for a place to hang his hat and call home this year. Any and all suggestions are welcomed.

The swimming schedule is the best L. C. has had in years. Villanova has been added this year and most of the meets are away.

Last year's basketball average of 71.0 points per game was the highest in Loyola's history.

Villanova (Lefty's alma mater) and Shepherd College have been added to this years basketball schedule to give the Hounds a twenty game schedule.

Latest to suffer the misfortune of receiving greetings from Uncle Sam are Jerry "Ace" Abbott and Charles Spigelmire. This gives the senior class about 95 men out of the 166 that started with us in our freshman year.

Mt. St. Mary's has taken up wrestling and soccer and have been added to our wrestling schedule.

Mo Sullivan, soccer manager and senior class vice-president, was forced to drop out of school last week due to doctor's orders. His loss will be hard felt in the A. A.

Fred Buchness is coaching freshman football at Loyola High School.

Block "L" Club News

President Jerry Chadwick presided at the initial gathering of the Block L Club, September 16. Social planning for the coming year was the chief discussion topic. According to the group, Wednesday will again be "Sweater Day." Chadwick expressed the desire for 100% membership of all letter winners, major or minor. Ned Callahan is vice-president of the organization, while Dan Whiteford and Al Meehan serve as treasurer and secretary respectively.

Lefty Reitz To Be Honored

Soccer candidates are shown practicing for the season's opener on Friday October 9th at home against Western Maryland. Coach Lefty Reitz has an inexperienced team that should improve as the season progresses.

Students Urged to Enter Intramural Competition

by Lewis Ottenritter

October fifth will mark the beginning of another year of intramural sports at Loyola College. The program comprises most major sports; namely tennis, swimming, baseball, touch football, basketball, bowling and horseshoes.

Football Rules

Although the majority of us are familiar with touch football rules, still there are two very important rules which I would like to state. First, positively no cleats or football pads are permitted. Second, a team may be made up only of students from one year.

Double Elimination

The football season here at Loyola will open Monday. This being a double elimination league each team must lose two games before they are eliminated. Schedules and game times will be posted on the athletic bulletin boards.

Streaks Back

Entries have been received from about eight teams. Last year's runner-up the "Streaks" are back to cause plenty of trouble for the rest of the loop. The senior class with three entries may surprise many.

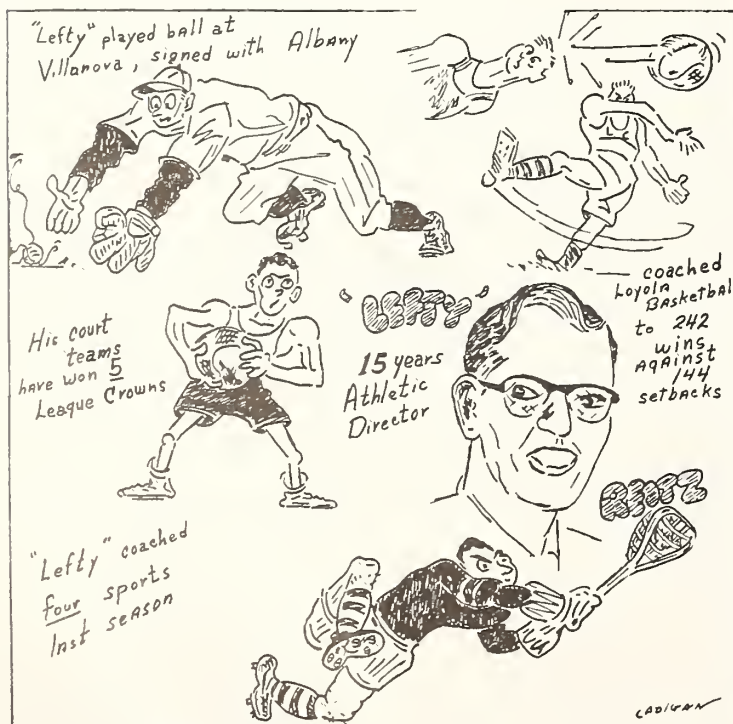

Tennis pairing will be posted today and the entries may play at their convenience. Approximately twenty-five men are entered in the field with the senior class again topping the rest.

Horseshoe Tournament

If enough are interested, a horseshoe tournament will be conducted by the intramural department headed by commissioners Bo Menton and Harry Lentz. Deadline for this tournament is today.

Need Student Help

Since we believe our intramural program is quite thorough, we request every student not playing on a school team to participate on one of our intramural teams. Remember, sports are wonderful exercise and a wonderful way to meet new friends.

Booters Short On Experience

by Joe Cain

When Coach "Lefty" Reitz started soccer practice, he found only eleven returning veterans from last year's squad. The Hounds lost nine of their brightest luminaries via the diploma route and a few were called by the draft.

The returning lettermen include Ned Callahan, Harry Lentz, Tom Bailey, Al Rabassa, Ed Cox, Ed Dentz and Dick Hall. Ned Callahan will captain the squad. Last year Tom Bailey was honored by being placed on the Mason-Dixon second team.

Rebuilding Needed

While Joe Mannion, John Quinn, John Vaccarino and Jim Koch saw only limited action last season, they will form together with the letter winners the nucleus of a fighting team. The rebuilding of the squad will be done around these players.

Freshmen Talent

Led by All-Marylander's Gerald McCarron and Jack Benzing, we have Walter Chard, Charles Kraus, Elmer Medley and David Bryan rounding out the squad. While Benzing won his fame at Mount St. Joe, McCarron was an All-Maryland goalie at Calvert Hall for two years.

No Reserves

The squad is young, inexperienced and shows weakness on the bench. This year "Lefty" is looking for an offensive punch as last year's pitchers dented the opponents' goal only six times during the entire campaign.

The Hounds face an interesting and compact eight game schedule. Every game appears to be a tough battle. The Reitzmen don't swing into action until October 9 and by that time "Lefty" hopes to have his team in fine physical condition.

— FLASH —

Because of the mortality rate among freshmen after the annual rugby game, one of Baltimore's leading hospitals has placed its facilities at the disposal of those underclassmen requiring medical attention. A large staff of brain surgeons and bone specialists has been enlisted to insure prompt treatment for the more serious cases. A priest has been placed on call for those unfortunates requiring last rites.

LOYOLA OF THE EAST

Running With The Hounds

by Bo Menton, Sports Editor

Friends, Alumni to Hold Banquet Oct. 8th at Belvedere

Emil G. "Lefty" Reitz, Jr., athletic director and coach of Evergreen teams for the past 15 years, is to be honored by Alumni and friends at a testimonial dinner on Thursday night, October 8th at the Sheraton Belvedere. Students, his former athletes, and many friends will join in paying tribute to a man who is largely responsible for placing Loyola of the East in a respected position in local sporting circles.

Five Court Crowns

Since taking over the basketball reins in 1937, "Lefty", as he is known to students and friends, has led the Greyhounds to five Mason-Dixon league crowns. His first year out, "Lefty" and his Hounds copped the Maryland Collegiate title. On five occasions Loyola squads were victorious in the annual Mason-Dixon tournament winning in 1942, 47, 48, 49, and 53; while finishing in the runner-up slot in 1941, 44 and 50; all three games oddly enough were lost by a single point. During these campaigns Reitz-coached teams have amassed 242 wins against 144 losses.

"Lefty", strange as it may seem, came to Loyola at the urging of a friend, who at that time was a senior on the Evergreen campus. With the resignation of Bill Liston, Father Jacobs, then athletic director, was busy looking for a basketball coach. "Lefty" applied for the job and since that time (with the exception of the twenty months he spent in the Navy as a specialist 1st class) his relations with Loyola have been pleasant ones.

Assumed Athletic Directorship

It was a year later in 1938 that "Lefty" assumed the duties as athletic director at which time Loyola was engaged in only four sports, namely basketball, baseball, lacrosse and tennis.

Before turning to Loyola, Coach Reitz was no stranger to the athletic scene; a product of Calvert Hall high school, he spent his undergraduate days at Villanova College where he earned four letters on the diamond and three for his court ability.

Father Ballplayer

Upon graduation "Lefty", who's father, Emil G. Reitz, Sr., had gained fame for his baseball play, signed with Albany of the International league, from where he was sent to York. A shoulder injury, however, forced "Lefty" to forego the diamond sport.

Loyola's station, athletically speaking, has risen steadily during the past decade. From only four sports in 1938 the athletic department under Mr. Reitz has grown to include ten sports on an intercollegiate basis, an intramural program open to all students, and a basketball team that through the years has held its own with some of the top teams of the East.

Mason-Dixon Treasurer

When the Mason-Dixon Conference was organized in 1940, Loyola was and still is one of the stronger members. "Lefty" was voted loop president in 1942 and held that office until 1944. Since 1947 he has been treasurer of that conference.

Married and the proud father of three daughters, "Lefty" is a hard man to please on the field of play; yet off the court or diamond, he is loved by his athletes for his friendliness, his informal manner and his guidance. Loyola is indeed proud of her athletic director and we all join in paying tribute to a man who has done his utmost through the years to develop and train youth not only to win ball games, but primarily to take their place as good citizens in the world today.
